PLANTING AND GROWING PERENNIALS

The present trend in perennial growing is to grow a number of different sorts in informal bed or along the shrub border and include only a few which are classed as rare plants. Perennials, or plants which live more than one year, are very essential on the grounds of anyone who likes color all through the different seasons. They may be planted in beds, in wide borders, in front of shrubs, around a pool, and the lower growing or dwarf sorts are widely used for rock garden planting. They may be planted in rows in a small garden for cutting purposes. They may be used singly but it is recommended that they be planted in clumps or groups of from three to twelve plants of a kind, as a mass of color is much more effective.

In planting a perennial planting, lay out the space you have available for them on piece of paper and spot in the taller growing sorts for background. Then select the plants for the border and jot them on your layout. Fill in with the medium tall growing sorts in the center of the bed. Select and plant for color display so that you do not have two kinds of perennials with the same color of blossoms beside each other. Color variations in a perennial bed essential.

Many types of perennials will do better if frequently transplanted, that is, about every third year. This is especially true of the Coreopsis, Gaillardias, Shasta Daisies and other varieties which have dense foliage just above the ground. The plants should be removed from the bed and torn into several divisions, and these divisions replanted, the same as new plants. Iris also does better if transplanted occasionally.

HOW TO GROW BEAUTIFUL DELPHINIUMS SUCCESSFULLY

Delphinium are easy to grow. They should have a good rich soil as they are known as gross feeders. Cow manure is the best. If this is not obtainable, get a small quantity of peat for each plant. This should be supplemented with a small quantity of lime to offset the acidity of the peat, as they like alkaline soil. As a commercial fertilizer, we recommend Vigoro, or a similiar brand, to be fed in small quantity every two weeks. This should be worked into the soil and well watered.

Delphinium is sometimes subject to fungus diseases. However, it is not difficult to eliminate these diseases if taken in time. When the foliage starts, dust or spray with Bordeaux mixture. This should be done at frequent intervals to take care of the new growth of the foliage.

In the event that Delphinium have been grown on the same soil in years previous, or you have experienced trouble with these fungus diseases, it is well to treat the soil with a solution of formaldehyde. The directions for using this disinfectant are usually found on the wrapper. Also, be sure that all old foliage has been carefully cleaned from the bed and burned.

In planting Delphinium, the soil should be opened with a trowel, the roots carefully spread out and soil well firmed around them. It is a very good idea to put a handful of peat in the opening right around the roots. Also, be careful not to cover the crown with more than one-half inch of soil. After the plant has come in full bloom, it may be cut off close to the ground, then new shoots will start and you will have a very nice second crop in a short time
